THE IS JUST BEGIN

A woman with long brown hair, wearing a light blue cardigan, is laughing heartily with her mouth wide open. She is holding a young child with a pink headband. They are standing on a high-rise terrace with a glass railing. The background shows a city skyline with a river and a bridge, viewed from a high angle. The large, bold text 'THE IS JUST BEGIN' is overlaid on the image, with the letters filled with various blue-tinted photographs of the terrace and city views.

Located in the center of the creative capital of the world, come take in the 360° skyline views from California's tallest open-air terraces. If you're looking for a thrill, ride the 45-foot all-glass Skyslide nearly 1,000 ft. above downtown LA or soak in the sun and sip locally sourced wine and beer. For a truly Only-in-LA experience, play with the interactive screens that highlight the views, and the vibrant culture that stretches as far as the eye can see.

DON'T live life WITHOUT IT™

big-league play

Dodger third baseman Justin Turner shares his favorite haunts, hikes, and hot spots.

most baseball fans

know him for his hair—fire-red locks that escape from beneath his ball cap and a ZZ Top–style beard that flows down past his collar. In L.A., however, Dodger fans know Justin Turner (aka J.T.) for something else, too: consistency on the field.

Since donning Dodger blue in 2014, the power-hitting infielder has given crowds at Chavez Ravine plenty to cheer about—four All-Star game appearances and three Octobers of playoff heroics, including a pivotal role in the team's 2017 World Series run. With his exciting defense and charisma to boot, it's no wonder so many people love J.T. It's also no surprise that the Dodgers inked him for a four-year deal in 2016.

The 34-year-old, who grew up in Long Beach, loves L.A. and considers himself a local. "It's been amazing to come back and play in front of my hometown fans," he says, looking back on the first few years of his career with East Coast teams. "It's kind of a dream to be able to come back to the West Coast."

When Turner isn't mashing homers into the left-field seats, he and his wife, Kourtney, have some familiar haunts. No. 1 on their list: the Magic Castle, the private magic club in Hollywood. The two are members and go to see shows there whenever they can. They also love the rides at Universal Studios Hollywood™ and have annual passes.

For lower-key local adventures, the Turners hit the hiking trails of Runyon Canyon with their dog. They go early in the day to maximize their quality time together by minimizing the number of other hikers who recognize them. "It's still not very easy for me to hide," Turner says, admitting that his signature locks usually give him away. "Everywhere I go, people come up to me and ask for pictures and autographs. It's certainly nice to be loved."

When dining out, the couple prefers quiet and casual over fancy and loud. The 62-year-old Casa Vega Mexican restaurant in Sherman Oaks is one of their favorites. The albondigas soup is "off the charts," Turner says, and confesses that he and Kourtney can "eat chips and salsa for hours."

Overall, one of his favorite aspects of life in Los Angeles, Turner says, is the endless array of opportunities to do, see, eat, and learn. "Angelenos are great fans and great people," he says. "It's a dream to be part of this community again."

game on!

The City of Angels has become a landmark destination in the world of sports.

Long renowned as the entertainment capital of the world, Los Angeles has shaped up to be the planet's best sports town, too. Last year, the NBA's Los Angeles Lakers added LeBron James, arguably the most talented and famous athlete in history, to its roster. The NHL's Los Angeles Kings have won two Stanley Cups this decade. The MLB's Los Angeles Dodgers made it to back-to-back World Series in 2017 and 2018, and the Los Angeles Rams count one of the game's best running backs, Todd Gurley, among its ranks. All told, the city has three professional basketball teams, one pro baseball team, two pro football teams, and two pro soccer teams.

L.A. is also home to some of the most historic venues in sports, including the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, Dodger Stadium, and the Rose Bowl Stadium. The city's latest icon, the Banc of California Stadium, seats 22,000 soccer fans in a state-of-the-art facility with views of the Downtown skyline.

And more sports landmarks and milestone events are on the horizon. The city's two NFL football teams will soon share a home field at the new world-class, 3-million-square-foot Los Angeles Stadium, set to open in 2020. Also next year, Los Angeles will host the MLB All-Star Game and the NCAA Men's West Regional Basketball Championship. The city will go on to welcome the Super Bowl in 2022, the College Football Playoff National Championship and the U.S. Open golf tournament in 2023, the Fédération Internationale de Football Association World Cup™ games in 2026, and the Summer Olympics in 2028.

So, sports fans — see you at the games.

tastes of the town

Niki Nakayama, a Los Angeles-born chef who's won acclaim for her exquisite 13-course kaiseki dinners, dishes on where to find the best local Japanese fried chicken, tomato ramen, and super-premium rice.

niki nakayama

is, arguably, serving some of the most beautiful food in all of Los Angeles. At n/naka, her lauded restaurant in West L.A., the dishes are composed with painterly grace and precision. That would be challenging enough if Nakayama were presenting dinners of two or three courses. Instead, she is offering a modern interpretation of Japanese kaiseki—a stunning progression of 13 courses that’s a celebration of texture, technique, taste, and tradition.

Experiencing this culinary prowess isn’t easily achieved. Reservations are available three months in advance and book up almost instantly, thanks in part to Nakayama’s growing fame since being profiled on an episode of Netflix’s Chef’s Table.

There is, of course, no n/naka without Nakayama. She’s in the kitchen on Wednesday through Saturday, when the restaurant is open for dinner. On her days off, she likes to explore the tastes of the city where she was raised, which shaped her as a chef.

“I love that in Los Angeles we can get so many kinds of authentic and traditional cuisines, as well as a wonderful merging of these cuisines,” Nakayama says. “A lot of chefs, myself included, have grown up eating food from different cultures, so we’re familiar with different seasonings and different ways to put dishes together. And thanks to the wonderful efforts of the late food writer Jonathan Gold, who wanted our residents to travel outside of our neighborhoods, as diners we know that L.A. has great restaurants everywhere.”

A robata restaurant in a Torrance strip mall, Torihei (torihei-usa.com) “feels like the kind of place you’d casually wander into somewhere in Japan,” Nakayama says. “I love the skewered chicken wings that are grilled and roasted over Japanese charcoal. They also do this really amazing fried chicken. It has ginger and garlic and all the seasonings that you’d enjoy in karaage, Japanese fried chicken, and they do a wonderful job of keeping the skin super crispy instead of soggy.

“One of my favorite things to eat at Ramenya (asianya-usa.com) is a tomato ramen. It has a tomato and chicken broth base with a little bit of basil and fried garlic chips. It’s like a soupy tomato pasta, and while it’s not a traditional ramen, I have seen it in Japan.

“For high-end dining, I really enjoy Dialogue (dialoguerestaurant.com) in Santa Monica. The interaction with the chef, Dave Beran, and his team makes the experience really special. And the menu is very intricate and different. The chef is using ingredients both at their peak and preserved from seasons past. In the height of summer, we had a chestnut pie for dessert, which felt very autumnal. It’s really a unique dining experience.

“Nijiya Market (nijiya.com) on Sawtelle Boulevard in West L.A. carries a lot of unique items that you can’t find anywhere else. For example, you can get uonuma koshibihikari rice, which is wonderful and incredibly expensive—about $40 for a five-pound bag. You’ll want to eat rice like this with very simple dishes, like Japanese pickles or a beautifully cooked omelet, so you can really enjoy the rice flavor.

“One of my favorite places to go in our neighborhood for good cocktails and food is The Wallace (thewallacela.com) in Culver City. It’s a casual place with fun drinks that tend to be a little on the sour side, which I like, and lovely food. They do a wonderful striped bass with a delicious celery root puree. The flavors are really outstanding.”

global eats

Take a foodie trip around the world without leaving Los Angeles.

You could travel to Mexico City for authentic tamales, to Paris for a perfect croissant, to Bangkok for a true market version of pad Thai, to Mumbai for the crunchy street food known as chaat. Or you could save a small fortune on airfare and simply visit Los Angeles, a city of dazzling multiculturalism and a food scene as diverse as you'll find anywhere in the world.

apl restaurant

Adam Perry Lang may be good friends with Jimmy Kimmel, who calls Perry Lang “the meat maestro,” but his new steakhouse, located in L.A.’s first-ever high-rise at the corner of Hollywood and Vine, is no joke. For one thing, Perry Lang has hand-forged a collection of steak knives that will set you back $950 if you leave with one. All the butchering and dry aging takes place on site in a temperature-controlled subterranean room. While APL isn’t open for lunch, what was formerly a single-chair barbershop has been turned into a daytime takeaway window called Hole in the Wall, with gourmet chili dogs and the $50 Serious Barbecue Sandwich.

badmaash

In 2017, the original Downtown L.A. location of this Indian gastropub made Travel + Leisure’s list of “Best Indian restaurants in the U.S.” Now dad Pawan Mahendro and sons Nakul and Arjun have brought their irreverent take on their beloved cuisine to a second spot, a colorful storefront on North Fairfax Avenue that’s open daily (12 p.m.–10 p.m. Sunday–Wednesday, 12 p.m. to 11 p.m. Thursday–Saturday). Bring lots of friends for a feast of samosas, chicken tikka poutine, goan pork curry, and cauliflower tandoori.

bavel

Since it opened in 2012, Bestia has been one of the toughest reservations to get in all of Los Angeles. Now that Italian eatery in Downtown’s Arts District has competition from Bavel, the nearby Middle Eastern follow-up from the same husband-and-wife chef team, Ori Menashe and Genevieve Gergis. Housed in an old brick warehouse bright with skylights, greenery, and a dining patio, Bavel is drawing rapturous reviews for dishes like a roasted lamb neck shawarma, braised beef cheek tagine, and a “duck ’nduja hummus” that’s an Instagram sensation.

broken spanish

Los Angeles native Ray Garcia had considered going to law school after graduating from UCLA. Luckily for us, he chose tamales instead of trials. Hailed by Food & Wine as one of the 10 best Mexican chefs in the U.S., Garcia opened Broken Spanish in Downtown Los Angeles after six years helming Santa Monica's acclaimed FIG. His elevated take on traditional dishes includes an oxtail quesadilla, chicharron with radish sprouts, and carnitas made with grass-fed lamb. » 1050 South Flower Street, Los Angeles, 213.749.1460, brokenspanish.com

joy

The eastside neighborhood of Highland Park is becoming a new culinary destination, thanks to restaurants like this casual Taiwanese spot. A sister to the Silver Lake favorite Pine and Crane, Joy lives up to its name with a small curated menu of crowd-pleasers: a trio of noodle dishes, a quartet of rice offerings, two types of greens, a few appetizers and soups, and three sandwiches. For dessert, there's mochi forbidden rice pudding and shaved ice. You can even take home a loaf of the sesame scallion bread and spread the Joy.

lasa

One of the stars of L.A.'s burgeoning Filipino food scene, LASA started as a backyard pop-up by Filipino-American brothers Chad and Chase Valencia before moving into permanent digs in Chinatown's Far East Plaza. Named a 2018 "Restaurant of the Year" by Food & Wine, LASA serves dishes like twice-cooked pork belly with smoky eggplant, charcoal grilled chicken gizzards, and shrimp with deep-fried heads. For lunch, there are a half-dozen bowls for $10 to $12 built around ingredients like coconut adobo chicken, Chinese pork sausage, and cured egg yolks.

tiki bars

An aloha welcome, drinks adorned with orchids and paper umbrellas, and instant transport to the tropics simply by stepping over a thatched threshold: Who can deny the allure of a tiki bar? And why try? Los Angeles is leading the tiki revival with both longstanding Polynesian palaces and innovative newcomers.

good luck bar

The Potent Potion and Karate Punch are both served in ceramic coconuts, but don't mistake that playfulness for weakness. Like every other cocktail—all $12—they are well made and stiff. Whether you enjoy your Polynesian concoction under a Chinese lantern at the bar or at one of the well-worn red leather banquettes, sip slowly. » 1514 Hillhurst Avenue, Los Angeles, 323.666.3524, goodluckbarla.com

lono hollywood

Old Hollywood glamour meets tiki tradition at this expansive and upscale Hollywood Boulevard hideaway. Come here with friends for the Lono Luau (order 48 hours in advance), a multicourse feast that includes Peking duck, spot prawns, pork belly and oxtail served on steamed buns, and Thai-spiced buttermilk fried chicken. » 6611 Hollywood Boulevard, Los Angeles, 323.848.4475, lonohollywood.com

pacific seas

Located on the fourth floor of Clifton's Republic is what Thrillist describes as "a Tiki bar on steroids." Designed to evoke a South Seas adventure, the warren of rooms is Polynesian posh, with palm fronds and rattan galore, 10-foot-tall lighthouses, tiki statues, and a gorgeous polished mahogany speedboat. » 648 South Broadway, Los Angeles, 213.627.1673, cliftonsla.com/pacific-seas

tiki no

There's karaoke on Wednesday and Sunday, happy hour daily from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., and you can drink until 2 a.m. at this establishment's rattan bar any night of the week. A coconut mojito or piña colada will set you back only $7, or you could splurge on a $10 Toasted Marshmallow (ovenproof rum, fluffed vodka, apple, cinnamon, and lemon). Bottom line: You'll want to say Tiki Yes to this NoHo Arts District favorite. » 4657 Lankershim Boulevard, North Hollywood, 818.766.0116, tikinola.com

tiki-ti

This iconic and tiny bar, housed in a hut on the border of Silver Lake and Los Feliz, has a menu of tropical cocktails as long as your arm—94 drinks in all. The website offers "Tiki-Ti Survival 101": Ask the door person for a drink menu while you're waiting in line. If you're still racked with indecision, remember Ray's Mistake is the most popular drink; The Stealth, the strongest. » 4427 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, 323.669.9381, tiki-ti.com

tonga hut

The oldest tiki bar in L.A., Tonga Hut has been serving up Zombies, Mai Tais, and Blue Hawaiians for 60 years. Some things remain the same: Sipping a cocktail made for two, the proprietors believe, is still the perfect activity for a first date. Or, we'd add, a 50th. Try the Scorpion Bowl and see if you agree. » 12808 Victory Boulevard, North Hollywood, 818.769.0708, tongahut.com

petit trois valley

This "might be the most French restaurant in L.A.," Los Angeles magazine declared of the second Petit Trois location (the first, much smaller spot, is in Hollywood) from chef Ludo Lefebvre and partners Jon Shook and Vinny Dotolo. Since it's open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., you could easily enjoy three splendid meals here. For breakfast, Chef Ludo's superb Boursin-stuffed omelet, a roasted beet salad for lunch, and for supper, steak frites or a confit chicken leg. » 13705 Ventura Boulevard, Sherman Oaks, 818.989.2600, valley.petittrois.com

rossoblù

"Bologna inspired and Los Angeles made" is how this sprawling Italian eatery on the edge of Downtown's Fashion District describes itself. That means chef Steve Samson is evoking memories of childhood summers spent in Bologna with an ambitious in-house butchery and salumi program, handmade pasta, and farm-fresh produce. The ragù Bolognese—"beef, pork, not too much tomato sauce"—is rightly celebrated. » 1124 San Julian Street, Los Angeles, 213.749.1099, rossoblula.com

WHAT TO DO IN L.A.

hidden bars & speakeasies

Nobody wants to bring back Prohibition, but there's no question that sharing cocktails with friends felt a little more daring, naughty, and glamorous when alcohol was forbidden. You can capture that sense of derring-do without the risk of jail time at these clandestine spots.

blind barber

You can get a haircut and shave ($105 for the combo) at this Culver City barbershop/cocktail bar hybrid and then step through an unmarked door and into swank digs for a gourmet grilled cheese sandwich and a Sweeney Ted (bourbon, lemon, honey, egg white, and bitters).

» 10797 Washington Boulevard, Culver City, 310.841.6679; 5715 North Figueroa, Highland Park, 323.739.0315; blindbarber.com

the edison

Located in the sub-basement of the historic Higgins Building, site of a former power plant, The Edison is a sprawling den of private venues, bars, and lounges. Check the calendar for events, which range from Latin jazz to magic shows and heart-stopping aerialists. The handcrafted cocktails include grown-up nonalcoholic offerings, while the food menu runs from fries and wings to braised short ribs.

» 108 West 2nd Street, Los Angeles, 213.613.0000, edisondowntown.com

madame siam

In the last decade, twin brothers Mark and Jonnie Houston have opened more than a dozen lounges and restaurants, transforming L.A. nightlife with spots like La Descarga, Harvard & Stone, and No Vacancy. Their latest, housed in the same Hollywood building as their bars Black Rabbit Rose and Dirty Laundry, is an east-meets-west carnival-themed speakeasy where you can sip a Calamity Jane or Goon of Fortune cocktail, munch on corn dogs, and enjoy a midway game of lobbing balls into the yawning mouths of Donald Trump or Kim Jong-un. » 1723 North Hudson Avenue, Los Angeles, 323.337.3727, madamesiam.com

the melrose station

"Some of the greatest things in life are the hardest to find" is the motto of this hidden speakeasy. To gain entry you need to see the host at the Glass Hookah Lounge. If you're dressed properly—no shorts, tank tops, track suits or flip-flops—you'll be guided through a concealed passageway and back in time to a posh lounge where craft cocktails and a global menu of tapas are served nightly from 7 p.m. "until late." » 7384 Melrose Avenue, Los Angeles, no phone, themelrose station.com

r bar

You'll need to check R Bar's Facebook page for the password that's necessary to gain entry into this Koreatown karaoke bar and restaurant. (Look for the "R" on the exterior door.) Reports are you can skip the password for weekend brunch, which features bottomless mimosas and excellent breakfast burritos. » 3310 West 8th Street, Los Angeles, 213.387.7227, facebook.com/rbartown

red door

It takes a bit of detective work to find this place. (Hint: Take the alley behind Paty's Diner and look for a reddish door.) Once inside, there are rich brown leather booths, black-and-white movies projected on the walls, margaritas, martinis, and a menu that features chicken and waffle sliders. » 10057 Riverside Drive, Toluca Lake, 818.277.3884, no website

the varnish

Opened in 2009, The Varnish created the template for speakeasies. It's obscured—in a former broom closet of Cole's, the DTLA saloon that calls itself the "originator of the French Dip Sandwich." It's tiny. The cocktails are meticulously mixed. Its fans are fiercely devoted. » 118 East 6th Street, Los Angeles, 213.265.7089, 213hospitality.com/the-varnish ★

taking the world by storm

Actress Alexandra Shipp tells where to go for art, eats, shopping, smokes, and laughs.

ABBOT KINNEY BOULEVARD, VENICE

alexandra shipp

came to L.A. to be a star and her wish is more than coming true. Hollywood tidbit: Before dazzling moviegoers in hits like Straight Outta Compton (as Ice Cube's wife, Kimberly Woodruff), X-Men: Apocalypse (taking the torch from Halle Berry to play superhero Storm), and last year's Love, Simon (as the titular closeted teen's understanding pal), Alexandra Shipp worked at a fancy cigar lounge near Rodeo Drive. Yet the ever-rising actress—this summer alone, she's back as that weather-controlling mutant in X-Men: Dark Phoenix and plays more than a love interest in the latest Shaft reboot—is perfectly happy living in the San Fernando Valley. After all, “there are a lot of good [live] theaters there,” she says. Storm, she admits, “would be a little more freaked out with how [hot] it can get. I feel like she's a Manhattan Beach kind of gal.”

At 27, Shipp herself is sunny and clear-minded and won't let fame cloud her vision. From mini-mall to glamorous set, her motto is: “Just be a beacon of happiness and light rather than a problem. Fun people are the real stars.” No wonder she loves SoCal. Originally an Arizona gal, Shipp, guided by her yoga instructor-mom and musician-dad, started acting, singing, and dancing in plays in hometown Phoenix at age 10. By the time she was 13, she had a manager and agent. And at 17, she moved with her mom to Long Beach for her big break: playing a bubbly high-schooler in the smash family flick Alvin and the Chipmunks: The Squeakquel. “I already knew I loved L.A.,” she says, “so I was, like, I'm so there. I'm gonna graduate [high school] early online and become a big, famous star. The Squeakquel! This was my moment!”

Shipp is also wistful for her first grown-up pad in East Hollywood's Little Armenia. She still pops into the local cafe Sabor y Cultura (saborycultura.com), an anarchist-themed joint with fine espresso and open mic nights. Another fave nearby: the cinematically cozy restaurant-bar Birds (birdsbollywood.com; two doors down from L.A.'s starry comedy playhouse Upright Citizens Brigade, franklin.uctbeatre.com). “Every time I drive by Birds, I get sentimental,” she says. “I took my girlfriend there for her bachelorette party and someone gave her a microphone. It was really bad.”

Good is getting lost in Venice Beach's monthly First Fridays (abbotkinneyfirstfridays.com) street fair on boho-chic Abbot Kinney Boulevard. “The art is fantastic, and it's fun to see what the community is creating,” Shipp says. “Plus, they've got a bunch of delicious food trucks. A grilled cheese sandwich filled with mac and cheese covered in cheese and then deep fried in cheese can sound weird. But I want that!”

Over in DTLA, the stylish Shipp shops for deals in the Fashion District's Santee Alley (fashiondistrict.org). Big on meditation, she finds healing crystals at incense-burning spiritual shops like the alley's Tenzin Imports. “Avoid places that charge $350 for a $20 crystal that has a little bit of gold paint and ‘Namaste’ written on the front!” she advises.

As for her Beverly Hills past? Shipp was a hostess for a couple of years at Buena Vista Cigar Club (310.273.8100), a public tobacco shop with a full bar and hunting-lodge vibe. “It was fun to be a girl and school men on tastes and origins,” she says.

Speaking of bringing folks into today's more enlightened times, Shipp's Shaft character is an ER doctor who helps nudge the franchise forward. In previous versions, the iconic private eye hasn't exactly been a beacon of respect for women. This time, she says, “he gets called out for that. [Beat] Sometimes, I think we can change the world just by laughing at ourselves.”

a museum insider's take

The curator of the Institute of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles, Jamillah James, reveals her eclectic collection of favorite places to experience art, music, and film in the city.

INSTITUTE OF CONTEMPORARY ART,
LOS ANGELES (ICA LA)

jamillah james

joined the Institute of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles (ICA LA) as curator in the summer of 2016, just as the museum, formerly the Santa Monica Museum of Art, was rebranding and moving to a newly renovated 12,700-square-foot space in Downtown L.A. A non-collecting institution, the ICA LA is dedicated to fostering artistic experimentation and making contemporary art relevant and accessible to all. “As a curator,” says James, “my role is helping the museum establish its new identity and to set a tone for the conversation that’s taking place. We support the production of new work and spotlight new and emerging artists, but also those who are ‘unseen.’ My interest is filling in the blanks and locating them in context.”

James, who previously was assistant curator of the Hammer Museum, has lived in Los Angeles for four years, and though she says that covering the far-flung art scene in the city takes up much of her time, she has acquired an affinity for some offbeat (and a few less-so) cultural opportunities in the city.

Keeping up with art galleries is her stock in trade, though she says, “It’s a challenge to visit a lot in a single day. I tend to go to spaces on the Eastside. A number of artist-run spaces are there, and younger artists live there.” Commonwealth & Council (commonwealthandcouncil.com) in Koreatown is one artist-run nonprofit she cites. “The Underground Museum (theunderground-museum.org) is very active in the West Adams area,” she says. “It’s concerned with arts in a neighborhood setting.”

“There’s an interesting dance community in L.A.,” James adds, pointing to Pieter Performance Space (pieterpasd.com) in Highland Park, which hosts workshops, classes, and performances. And

Human Resources (humanresourcesla.com) in Chinatown “does a lot to support people doing movement.”

Music and movies have long been part of James’s life. Her mother was a music teacher, and James learned to play violin, tuba, drums, and bass guitar in school and from her mom. In college she studied cinema before turning to art as a major, and she enjoys L.A. venues that cater to those passions. “The Zebulon (zebulon.la) in Frogtown was a nightclub and restaurant in Brooklyn,” she says. “Now the same people run it in L.A. There’s fantastic music, a restaurant, cafe, and flea market. Dynasty Handbag [the alter ego of comedian Jibz Cameron] performs, and there are movie screenings on Sundays.”

In a different vein, she says, “I love to see shows at the Hollywood Bowl (hollywoodbowl.com). I’ve been to incredible concerts—big bands that have been established a long time and performers who were active when I was a child.”

James is a fan of the recently reopened New Beverly Cinema (thenewbev.com). Owned and programmed by moviemaker Quentin Tarantino, it’s a showcase for “B movies, horror, extreme cinema, films from the ’60s and ’70s...cult movies.”

Another nice thing about Los Angeles, she adds, is that “you go quickly from the trappings of the city to nature. I do a little hiking. I go to Griffith Park to the abandoned zoo; there’s a walking path, some views, and quietude.”

And on Friday nights you might find her at The Comedy Store (thecomedystore.com). “I’m interested in humor,” she says, “and how it affects the production of art. A lot of artists have a great sense of humor. It’s one of the great ways to navigate the world. It’s important to have a laugh.”

ACADEMY MUSEUM OF MOTION PICTURE

Currently in production, the Academy Museum is awaiting its close-up. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences plans to raise the curtain on the world's premier movie museum sometime this year. Located in the heart of the city in the historic May Company building at Wilshire and Fairfax, the museum will explore the history and magic of what happens on screen as well as behind it.

THE LUCAS MUSEUM OF NARRATIVE ART

This one-of-a-kind museum is set to house the billion-dollar personal art collection of legendary director George Lucas, including Star Wars memorabilia and a treasure trove of works by masters from Degas to Renoir. Slated to open in 2021 in Exposition Park, the memorable attraction will sport a bold design by award-winning architect Ma Yansong and celebrate the power of visual storytelling through painting, illustration, photography, film, animation, and digital art.

ACE HOTEL, ARTS DISTRICT

Downtown Los Angeles has experienced a renaissance. Hip hotels, trendsetting restaurants, and world-class entertainment venues and museums sustain a thriving art scene and nightlife along walkable streets. The L.A. LIVE entertainment complex offers restaurants, live music venues, Microsoft Theater, bowling alley/eatery Lucky Strike, and movieplex Regal L.A. LIVE: A Barco Innovation Center. Across the street, STAPLES Center hosts major concerts and sporting events. The arena is home to the Lakers, Clippers, Kings, and Sparks. The Los Angeles Rams NFL team's temporary home field is the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, where they will play until their grand new LA Stadium is completed in 2020. L.A.'s newest sports team is the Los Angeles Football Club, which plays in the soccer-specific facility, the Banc of California Stadium. Walt Disney Concert Hall is a modern architectural masterpiece right next door to a cultural and design showpiece, The Broad museum.

neighborhood: arts district

Located on the eastern edge of Downtown and within walking distance of Little Tokyo, the Arts District is a vibrant creative community. Former industrial buildings have morphed into live-work lofts and upscale condos with a hip, urban vibe and edgy street art. Look for trendy boutiques and unique galleries such as the contemporary Hauser & Wirth, along with some of the hottest restaurants and bars in the city. The cafe at Blue Bottle Coffee offers a jolt, along with every-Saturday roaster tours. The wildly popular Smorgasburg LA takes over a five-acre site every Sunday, featuring dozens of food, drink, and shopping vendors and music. A buzzing craft beer scene includes Angel City Brewery, Iron Triangle Brewing Company, and Arts District Brewing Company.

With concierge services, live music, celebrity chefs, and VR experiences, L.A.-area malls have become retail-experience destinations.

In an era when “window shopping” means perusing a screen, traditional malls have begun upping their game. To lure consumers away from online shopping, brick-and-mortar shopping centers now offer experiences and services that customers cannot get from their smart devices. Malls all across the country are transforming into retail-experience destinations where guests not only shop and purchase, but also are entertained, inspired, and even thrust into new worlds. These popular L.A. shopping venues have taken up the mantle, encouraging locals and out-of-towners alike to embrace a day at the mall.

As part of a $1 billion redevelopment project, Westfield Century City (10250 Santa Monica Boulevard, Los Angeles, westfield.com/centurycity) broadly expanded its garden retreat-style property. The 1.3-million-square-foot center now includes

The Atrium, an event/entertainment space for concerts and attractions—such as the popular Louis Vuitton Time Capsule exhibit—and has embraced virtual reality (VR) technology to host Dreamscape Immersive’s Alien Zoo experience. To up the ante on customer service, the mall added Smart Parking technology, the world’s first permanent Uber lounge, and a suite dedicated to celebrity and VIP services, complete with a private entrance. For health-conscious guests, there’s the Gloveworx boxing and athletic performance studio, Orangetheory Fitness studio, UCLA Health Clinic, Next Health state-of-the-art cryotherapy clinic, and a new primary healthcare membership concept called Forward.

Optimally situated in a central L.A. location, The Grove (189 The Grove Drive, Los Angeles, thegrovela.com) is an outdoor shopping, dining, and entertainment destination that encourages visitors to congregate around dancing fountains, revel in nostalgia-laced trolley rides, get inspired by onsite fashion shows, check out pop-up shops, take gourmet cooking and other classes at top retail outlets, and hear live music day and night. Amenities include a Family Room with a play area and a weekly Kids Club, as well as a full-service concierge to provide package assistance, dining/travel reservations, customized event planning, equipment rentals from wheelchairs to phone chargers, and even notary service.

The recently redesigned Beverly Center (8500 Beverly Boulevard, Los Angeles, beverlycenter.com) has launched several unique experiences and programs to complement its luxury retail offerings. The center has doubled down on culinary excellence with a dozen new dining options, including the fine seafood at Angler by Saison and the healthful Mexican dishes at Tocaya Organica. The tourism program at the center's concierge offers language translation services as well as exclusive retailers' discounts and special privileges for guests traveling from more than 50 miles away. There is also a recently installed 20-by-35-foot LED screen in the Grand Court, brought to life by new site-specific artwork from renowned media artist Refik Anadol.

Pairing its retail and dining options with stunning open spaces and eye-popping ocean and city views, Santa Monica Place (395 Santa Monica Place, Santa Monica, santamonica.com) is truly a consumer paradise, SoCal-style. Here, aspiring chefs and bakers can sign up for an array of culinary courses at The Gourmandise School of Sweets & Savories and families can explore the on-site Cayton Children's Museum. Shoppers are invited to touch and try products at numerous digitally native vertically integrated brand stores. Meanwhile, the Concierge Lounge is open to provide guest assistance and a beautiful space in which to relax.

ticket to ride

A far-reaching transit system and bike-share opportunities lay the wonders of the city at your feet.

Los Angeles offers so much to see and do that narrowing down an itinerary can cause a major case of FOMO (fear of missing out). Making the most of Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (Metro; metro.net) services, however, can allow a visitor to forgo the freeways and maximize time for fun. “With all of Metro’s new connections, using it for transport in the Los Angeles area and surrounds just makes sense,” says Metro spokesperson Anna Chen.

The TAP card, a reusable transit-fare card that can be used at 26 L.A. transit agencies, makes it easy to ride Metro alternatives. The card can be purchased and loaded with fare at Metro stations and local vendors (find a location at taptogo.net).

metro light rail and bus lines

TAP card in hand, it’s time to take in L.A. via Metro’s light-rail and bus system. “You can ride Metro anywhere around town,” says Chen, “all the way from cowboy country in Chatsworth on the Orange Line to the beaches of Santa Monica and the cultural scene of Downtown Los Angeles on the Expo Line, and to Long Beach to visit the Aquarium of the Pacific and the Queen Mary on the Blue Line. Other regional providers that connect with Metro will even take you as far as Santa Barbara and San Diego.”

Metro’s highest ridership is found en route to favorite tourism hot spots, including Hollywood’s Red Line, which takes passengers to Universal Studios Hollywood™, Hollywood & Highland, TCL Chinese Theatres, Hollywood Walk of Fame, El Capitan Theatre, and the Pantages Theatre; and the Expo Line, which goes to Santa Monica’s Third Street Promenade, Pacific Park, and the Marvin Braude Bike Trail. Both the Red and Blue lines connect to Downtown Los Angeles, where a plethora of must-see sites await, including Walt Disney Concert Hall, The Broad, the Music Center, and Union Station. Metro is also ideal for attending conventions, concerts, and sporting events at venues like the L.A. Convention Center, L.A. LIVE, and STAPLES Center, when event street closures abound and parking can be pricey.

PRO TIP: Plug dream itineraries into Metro’s itinerary planner (metro.net/riding/trip-planner) and hit the town. Want to cover even more ground? Add a bicycle to the mix.

THRILL CAPITAL OF THE WORLD

bike sharing

Located just outside of many Metro stops are Metro Bike Share stations (metro.net/bikeshare). “The Metro Bike Share Program enables Angelenos to combine bicycle and transit trips to get where they need to go without driving,” says Metro spokesperson Dave Sotero. “It’s the perfect first-mile/last-mile solution that gives people new ways to travel around key urban areas of our county.”

The program has met with such success that it has recently expanded into Venice and the Port of L.A. The cost of this 24-hour/365-day-a-year service is $1.75 for each 30 minutes. Other options include purchasing a day pass ($5 per day for unlimited free trips of 30 minutes or less; $1.75 per 30 minutes thereafter) and buying single-ride passes in bulk, which are discounted by up to 50 percent. Passes can be loaded on TAP cards to make checking out a bike even more convenient.

Other public bike-share programs are also easily accessible from many Metro rail and bus stations and have affordable rates. Santa Monica’s Breeze (santamoncabikeshare.com) covers ground in Santa Monica, Venice, Westwood, Beverly Hills, and West Hollywood. Or bike around Beverly Hills via Beverly Hills Bike Share (beverlyhillsbikeshare.com).

In West Hollywood, the WeHo Pedals bike share program (wehopedals.com) sparked the development of the Westside Rides network, which stretches to Santa Monica, Beverly Hills, and UCLA. The system allows crossover into participating cities without incurring extra fees. San Pedro is another seaside town offering bike sharing. LimeBike’s signature green-and-yellow two-wheelers are available there for $1 per half-hour.

two-wheeled tours

Keen on taking a bicycle tour? Santa Monica Bike Center (smbikecenter.com/tours) is a sure bet with three- to four-hour guided expeditions that focus on subjects ranging from street art to urban farming.

Perry’s Legends Historic Bike Tours (perryscafe.com) serves Venice and Santa Monica, where surfing, skateboarding, and beach volleyball were born.

Handlebar Bike Tours Los Angeles (handlebarbiketours.com) offers a two-hour tour that begins at the iconic Grand Central Market and takes in all the highlights of Downtown.

Tourists who want to see everything in one day may opt for Bikes and Hikes LA (bikesandhikesla.com). The organization’s six-hour LA in a Day tour covers 32 miles and attractions that top many tourists’ bucket lists.

LAX on the leading edge

A multibillion-dollar effort is changing the face of the country's second-busiest airport.

Los Angeles International Airport (LAX) has come a long way from its origins. “Charles Lindbergh flew out of here,” says airport historian Ethel Pattison, who has worked at LAX for 63 years. Pattison remembers that first airport, Mines Field, as “a dirt patch with just rabbits running around.” Today, LAX hosts 85 million air-travel passengers a year, and to accommodate this growing number, it’s undergoing a massive renovation:

a multibillion-dollar effort officially known as the Landside Access modernization program. It’s one of the largest public works projects in California history and it will be going on until 2023. Providing a taste of good things to come, the Tom Bradley International Terminal, rebuilt in 2013, now offers a roomier layout, modern design, waiting areas endowed with scads of electrical outlets, and outposts from well-known L.A. restaurants.

LOS ANGELES
INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT

transit within LAX

Four years from now, an automated people mover—elevated train—will be the new spine of the airport. The driverless electric train will glide on rubber tires along 2¼ miles of elevated guideway featuring a sculptural beam that connects six stops: a forthcoming parking structure, a giant new rental car facility, a new Metro hub, and several terminals. According to Los Angeles World Airports (LAWA), the city department that runs the airport, the system is expected to accommodate 10,000 riders each hour, with trams pulling into the stations every two minutes. The longest trip will take no more than 10 minutes.

Six glassy three-level boxes known as cores will house escalators and elevators between the ground floor and the people-mover stations. The 70-foot-high buildings will offer access to the different levels of the airport—for ticketing, baggage, security, etcetera.

On the top floor of each core, an open-air train platform will be landscaped with drought-tolerant California native plants. The structures are expected to rely heavily on solar power and will be LEED silver-rated. Dramatic canopy overhangs will make them easy to identify for faster wayfinding.

One stop, dubbed the “Experience L.A. Center,” will feature a giant LED screen touting the sights of the city. Another will have a viewing platform to admire the airport’s Theme Building, and all will figure heavily into LAX’s public-art program.

rail connection to the city

This year, Los Angeles’ public rail system, Metro, will extend its Green Line to reach a new Crenshaw/LAX Line 1.7 miles from the nearest LAX terminal. Then, in 2023, the people mover will close the gap, linking with that new Metro station. “It’s a very fluid, seamless connection from the airport people mover to the Metro system,” says the airport’s chief architect, Ellen Wright. Until the people mover comes into play, a shuttle will bridge the distance between the airport and the new Metro station.

centralized car rental

A 6 million-square-foot rental car complex will combine rental offices, cleaning and fueling facilities, and storage for more than 20,000 vehicles.

transformed terminals

Improvements are underway inside the terminals as well. Westfield is in the process of revamping retail components and dining options. Southwest’s Terminal 1 alone has 20 new shops, including a Kiehl’s skin-care shop and a MAC cosmetics store, while Los Angeles staple Cassell’s is dishing out fried-egg-and-avocado burgers and Urth Caffé is pouring matcha green tea lattes for travelers to enjoy before boarding. Terminal 3 has a Shake Shack, and Terminal 4, an outpost of French dip purveyor Cole’s.

Entertainment eases any wait, so Downtown’s Grand Performances has partnered with LAX to put on 18 shows—classical music, DJ sets, dancing—spread across six terminals. “There’s a whole mind-set shift,” says LAX’s chief of experience, Barbara Yamamoto. “It’s thinking not of getting people from A to B. What they do and how you treat them as part of their journey is more the focus. People are arriving earlier at the airport and tend to have longer dwell times. Airports have become more than just a transportation hub, so we’re looking to provide experiences for all our guests, from visual arts to performing arts.”

For members of the elite crowd, the Private Suite, which opened last May near the south runway, offers a paparazzi-free space to lounge, spa treatments, and a BMW ride to the runway. And starting this year, military members and their families will have access to a 24-hour USO relaxation station at the base of the Theme Building.

speedier security

The Transportation Safety Administration and U.S. Customs and Border Protection are stitching futuristic improvements into the security process. In 2018, British Airways and Lufthansa began experimenting in the Tom Bradley International Terminal with checking in some travelers using facial recognition, eliminating the need for a boarding pass. It’s the first program of its kind in the U.S., and Qantas and Korean Air are next to try it.

Terminal 2 and the international terminal are also home to 190 automated kiosks. After presenting a series of basic questions onscreen, the Automated Passport Control machine adjusts to the traveler’s height, snaps a photo, and spits out a receipt that speeds the trip through customs.

A new system of automated security-screening lanes with five times as many loading stations speeds up bag checks. Expect larger bins and a radio-frequency identification (RFID) system to keep track of everything.

the coveted climate

Renowned for its glorious weather, Los Angeles enjoys comfortable temperatures and low humidity year-round. Average highs in winter and spring range from 68 to 72 degrees Fahrenheit, warming up to 82 for summer. A few rainy days typically occur between November and April. In May, June, and July, a marine layer often casts a cloudy haze over the beach communities in the mornings, only to burn off midday. August tends to be the hottest month of the dry, sunny summer, but coastal breezes temper the heat. Evenings are cool throughout the year. Pack beachwear, comfortable layers of lightweight clothing, a light jacket, and sunscreen to make the most of L.A.'s mild climate.

get the app The Discover L.A. app is a sleekly designed pocket guide exclusively made for those looking to optimize their experience in the City of Angels. Packed with rich content and tailored for those looking to explore the best of Los Angeles, the app is available as a free download for both Android and iOS devices. Thematically synced to deliver personalized content based on weather, time, and distance, the app curates suggestions from the city's endless entertainment options—including world-class museums, diverse dining options, and captivating events.
