WESTFIELD CENTURY CITY

Eat, Browse, Play

With concierge services, live music, and celebrity chefs, L.A. area malls have become retail-experience destinations.

IN AN ERA WHEN “WINDOW SHOPPING” MEANS PERUSING A SCREEN, traditional malls have begun upping their game. Malls all across the country are transforming into retail-experience destinations where guests not only shop and purchase, but also are entertained, inspired, and even thrust into new worlds. These popular L.A. shopping venues have taken up the mantle, encouraging locals and out-of-towners alike to embrace a day at the mall.

As part of a $1 billion redevelopment project, Westfield Century City broadly expanded its garden retreat-style property. The 1.3-million-square-foot center now includes The Atrium, an event/entertainment space for concerts and attractions. To up the ante on customer service, the mall added Smart Parking technology, the world's first permanent Uber lounge, and a suite dedicated to celebrity and VIP services, complete with a private entrance.

Optimally situated in a central L.A. location, The Grove is an outdoor shopping, dining, and entertainment destination that encourages visitors to congregate around dancing fountains, revel in nostalgia-laced trolley rides, get inspired by on-site fashion shows, check out pop-up shops, take gourmet cooking and other classes at top retail outlets, and hear live music day and night. Amenities include a Family Room with a play area and a weekly Kids Club, as well as a full-service concierge to provide package assistance, dining/travel reservations, customized event planning, equipment rentals from wheelchairs to phone chargers, and even notary service.

The redesigned Beverly Center has launched several unique experiences and programs to complement its luxury retail offerings. The center has doubled down on culinary excellence with a dozen new dining options, including the fine seafood at Angler by Saison and the healthful Mexican dishes at Tocaya Organica. The tourism program at the center's concierge offers language translation services as well as exclusive retailers' discounts and special privileges for guests traveling from more than 50 miles away.

LAX on the Leading Edge

Multibillion-dollar changes are underway at Los Angeles' major gateway, with more on the horizon.

Change is in the air at Los Angeles International Airport (LAX; flylax.com), which is in the midst of a massive multibillion-dollar renovation. Known as the Landside Access Modernization Program (LAMP), the project is scheduled to be completed by 2023, and will allow LAX to better serve its more than 88 million air-travel passengers a year. While many of the improvements, including a redesigned Tom Bradley International Terminal and revamped retail and dining options, have been completed, there are many more in progress for travelers to look forward to.

LAX-it

LAX-it is a new convenient, centralized area for passengers to pick up a taxi or ride app service when leaving LAX Airport. Catch the LAX-it shuttle outside baggage claim on Level 1, or get your steps in and walk to the LAX-it area located adjacent to Terminal 1 to meet your taxi, Lyft, Opoli, or Uber. Restrooms, food trucks, and changing stations are available for your convenience.

Taking Off

With completion projected for summer 2020, a new Midfield Satellite Concourse is under construction. The new concourse will feature up to 15 gates to provide more options for arriving international and domestic flights. Access to the concourse will be provided by bus and by a 1,000-foot-long underground pedestrian tunnel, complete with moving walkways and passenger mobility carts, from the Tom Bradley International Terminal.

The concourse's contemporary, light-filled new structure will offer 44,000 feet of food-and-beverage and retail space, and up to 57,000 square feet of airline club space. The concourse will also bring new aircraft aprons and taxiways, allowing for more aircraft movement across LAX's two runway complexes.
